MISCELLANEOUS READING. GOOSE SHOOTING

A correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer has been enjoying a time of shooting. and gives a very racy sketch of his experience, from which we quote the concluding

"But let me tell you when the hunter gets over a point of woods, he sees them flying laboriously along in a curved line, emitting of tone. He sees by their course that they will pass directly over him, and he changes in public, under the superintendence of Commis- his ducking piece for the heavy goose gun that he carries in his bost. If he has no second gun he hastily draws his fine shot and puts in a charge of BB's. Now the long line approaches, and he crouches lower, lest they should discover him and change their course of flight, but anon be bears their deafening gabble and the rush of wings nearly over him: now is the time, the gun is grasped firmly, and he rises in his boat and levels at their 800 outstretched heads; first one barrel, then the 700 other, and with eager eyes watches the result. 500 Down come three, with a flap and noise that can be heard half a mile. One spins around like a top as soon as it strikes the open wa-125 ter, and then stretches out motionless, one has a broken wing, and has taken refuge in a bunch of flags, still in sight of the hunter, and where he will finish him as soon as he 4 Prizes of 300 ap'g to 30,000 are 1,200 can load; the third went down at an angle 800 | into a cluster of weeds, where the hunter has marked him, and he knows by the thrashing of wings that he is done for. Hurrah! is not this glorious sport, and does not one come out 100,000 of the marsh after a couple of weeks and return to the city, a new man, with bronzed

RAISING CALVES.

In a letter addressed to the "Country Gen tleman," and published in a recent number of that paper, Wm. H. Sotham so well do do 10 halt do 49 00 known for his partiality to "Herefords" and do do 10 quarter do 20 00 as a successful stock grower, remarks upon the subject of raising calves, as follows:

"I have been much pleased with a descrip tion a Devon breeder gave me of raising his calves, and which I intend to adopt in future. He has a small pasture adjoining his milking yards, and milks two tests of each cow dry, and when all are thus milked lets in his calves to take the remainder; this quantisent to purchasers immediately after the drawing. Purchasers will please write their signa- ty of milk, with good pasture, keeps them in tures plain, and give their Post Office, County, good growing condition. When taken from the cows, he grinds four bushels of oats with one of linseed; this fed moderately to them through the winter, mixed with chaff and a few small cut roots, keeps them in a growing mediately after the drawing-other prizes at the state the whole year. I look upon this course as the true way of raising calves, and I consider it strict economy. They come out in the spring, and keep in growing condition the whole of the summer, until the heifers S.
